What is Composting?

Composting is the natural breakdown of food and yard waste into a nutrient-rich material which can be added to your gardens.

Why Compost?

Soil Enrichment: Compost improves soil structure to enhance plant growth (similar to peat moss).

Water Conservation: Compost helps soil retain moisture which reduces the need for watering.

Waste Reduction: Compost can reduce your household waste by 30%. If everyone composted, it would dramatically reduce the amount of household garbage being disposed at the Municipal Waste Disposal Site.

Prevent Plant Disease: Compost contains natural antibiotics that suppress disease in plants.

How do I compost?

- Choose a sunny location (not too sunny or compost will dry out) with good drainage for your composter.
- Place a base (i.e., chicken wire) on the ground and set the composter on top of the base.
- Place kitchen scraps (i.e., greens – materials high in nitrogen such as vegetables, fresh manure or grass) with yard waste (i.e., browns – materials high in carbon such as dried leaves) in alternating layers and turn regularly.
- Place some "finished compost" or garden soil in a thin layer (1 inch) over top of kitchen waste to help speed up the process, reduce the risk of odours and allow for air movement and drainage.
- Your compost is ready when the texture is dark and crumbly and it has a pleasant earth-like smell.

What can I compost?

Yard Waste: Leaves, Weeds (before they go to seed), Flowers, Plants, Grass Clippings, Woodchips, Straw of Hay.

Kitchen Scraps: Fruits and Vegetables, Rice, Bread and Pasta (no oil or sauce), Tea Bags/Leaves, Coffee Grounds and Filters, Egg Shells.

Other: Hair, Sawdust (of non-treated wood).

What Can't I Compost in my Backyard?

- | | | |
|------------------|--------------------------|---------------------------------------|
| Meats | Dairy products | Salad dressing |
| Bones | Walnut shells and leaves | Leftover cooking oil |
| Fish | Weeds with mature seeds | Plants infected with disease |
| Dog or cat waste | Fatty Foods (eg. Cheese) | Rhubarb leaves and other toxic plants |

Composting Tips

- Always keep your compost material as moist as a damp sponge.
- Chop waste into smaller bits for faster decomposition
- Don't add thick layers of any material, particularly grass; mix it with other material instead.
- You can compost throughout the winter. The composting process slows down but speeds up again in spring.

Trouble Shooting

Symptoms	Problem	Solution
Compost has a bad odour	Not enough air Too Wet	Turn it to aerate Add dry materials
Process appears too slow	Compost is too dry Compost is frozen	Moisten and mix thoroughly Decomposition will continue in the Spring

Recycling Reminder

Please remember to keep glass separate from the rest of your recycling. If there is glass at the bottom of your recycling container the contractor may not see it until it is too late and has been dumped into the recycle truck. This can either cause the entire load of recyclables to be contaminated or the contractor has to try and remove the glass from the truck. Any type of container can be used to place glass on the curbside on recycle day. Please try your best to keep the glass separate!

Thank you in advance for your co-operation.

Waste Diversion Percentage

The numbers are in for July 2011! Residential has increased their waste diversion in the last month from 37% to 42%. Commercial has maintained a 34% waste diversion rate for the last two months. Let's continue the great work and see what we can achieve next month!
